TIP OF THE MONTH:

We pour & test a lot of candles. I use the CD's, Zinc's & Performas. We store them in the plastic candy containers with the flip up lids from the dollar store. We mark the wick size on top. It's easy to tell the wick type, (ie CD, Zinc) but it's hard to tell what size. So when we put them in the plastic storage, we color code the tops by passing the end of the wick over a stamp pad, green, blue, etc. CD8 is my main wick, so I color code the 7 and 10. Takes only a second. Now when the phone rings (OR KIDS) call, I can get right back to wicking and don't have to wonder what wick I've gotten out.. So many times I've found a wick on the floor and had to throw it away because I didn't know what size it was. This solved that problem ☺

Thanks,
Carole, Bugtussle Lane Candles.
